AND NOW some of our sisters and brothers don't want Chebatonis hanging in Michigan.
The crime for which he is accused was committed in Michigan, and we can see no reason for dumping the hanging job onto some other state. That bandit would still be at large could he have escaped; nobody could have stepped him if he had found it necessary to kill a few citizens, and he wouldn't have asked whether or not he was in Michigan. A son doesn't have to be hard on ed nor lacking in sympathy sentiment in order to want a man removed from a city.

TRESPASSERS WILL BE PROSECUTED

Anyone found tampering with any building or machinery at the sewage disposal plant will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Please observe the warning.

GEORGE GRANGER,
City Manager.

BALLROOM HABITS

"You ought to be a dancing instructor." "Yes?—Thanks for the compliment." "Yes, indeed. You are always inventing new steps which have never been heard of."

Big Massacre Blamed on Smell of Baking Bread

An Indian who wouldn't take no for an answer when he wanted bread and could smell it baking, precipitated one of the bloodiest Indian massacres in Michigan's history, says a Byron (Mich.) correspondent in the Detroit Free Press.

As a result the little town of Byron, settled in 1825, was wiped out and every family—except one—slaughtered. The one family was that headed by a miller named Smith.

The Indians refused to harm Smith because he had taken one of their chiefs who was severely injured into his home and cared for him until he recovered.

The massacre resulted when the husband of the woman who refused to give bread to the Indian walked into the house and shot him dead. The Indians demanded immediately that the killer be turned over to them for punishment. They threatened to kill and scalp every settler and burn their homes unless this were done.

In general the settlers felt that the killing had not been justified, but they stubbornly refused to submit one of their members to the Indians for torture. They sent a runner to get a company of soldiers from the fort at Detroit.

That night, Smith, who had been confined to bed because of an illness, heard guns fired, piercing cries of agony and the roar of flames consuming his neighbors' log cabins. He rushed from bed to the door. A blanketed Indian told him to go back to bed.

Smith attempted to go to the help of his friends through a back window. Another Indian barred his way. Imprisoned in his cabin he watched the destruction of the village.

The next day a squad of soldiers arrived. They found the village reduced to piles of charred logs, and heaps of hot ashes covered by the bodies of the victims, with Smith's family the only living beings.

Young of Some Animals

Weigh Little When Born

It is claimed that new born opossums weigh about four grains as compared with the mother's weight of ten pounds. The young are born with well-developed forelegs that enable them to crawl into the maternal pouch immediately after birth, where they remain for some time.

It is stated that the kangaroo perhaps heads the list in this respect. The mother, sometimes taller than a man, gives birth to young that are less than one inch long. Both the opossum and kangaroo are the best-known members of pouched animals, called marsupials.

The young of the common black bear, that are born in hibernation, weigh about ten ounces as compared with the mother's weight of two hundred pounds or more.

These three animals undoubtedly produce the smallest young in comparison to the weight of the parents of any wild animals.

Virginia white-tailed deer give birth to fawns weighing about four pounds while the mother tips the scale at 100 to 150 pounds.

About the Swastika

The swastika, oldest of all Aryan symbols, is definitely pre-Christian and many specimens of it have been found in the diggings of old Troy. From its rough likeness to a wheel it is associated by some with the solar motion and early worship of the sun, though the most important of its attributes, in ancient usage, is its character as a charm, a sign of benediction, of long life and good luck. It is the sacred symbol of one Buddhist sect, and from time immemorial has been known to all peoples of Asia. The fact that it was not unknown to the American Indian is held to point to early communication between the hemispheres. The word, swastika, says the Detroit News, derives from the Sanskrit "su" meaning well, and "asti" which means being. On the bust of Apollo in Vienna's famed museum of historical art is a large and unmistakable swastika, which bears out the supposed solar significance, and identifies that god, perhaps, as the first of the Austrian Nazis.

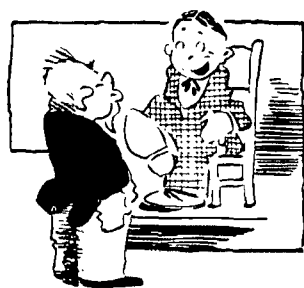

Search by Smell

Some authorities assert that reptiles employ the sense of smell to locate their kind, especially at the approach of the hibernating season. Observations on newts and allied creatures have shown that they nose about in a manner which strongly indicates search by smell. Perhaps the greatest trackers among the smaller animals are members of the cat and weasel families. A mink can follow the trail of a rabbit even after it is an hour old and will tenaciously stick to it until the prey is finally run down.

Alchemy a Mystery

The alchemists or chemists of the Middle Ages were obsessed with the problems of the transmutation of metals, the search for the elixir of life and the universal solvent. It is hard to find their records of discoveries, if any, for theirs was a secret art and they left few written records; what they did leave in writing is in language so mysterious as to be almost impossible of interpretation to us.

HONK, HONK

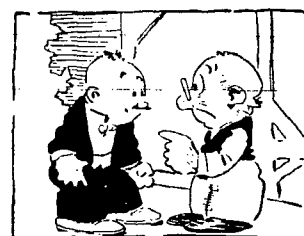

Judge—What was your motive when you ran over that woman? Motorist—Nothing, your honor, but gasoline!

THAT MODERN BOY

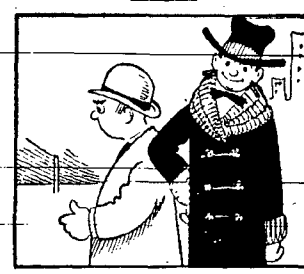

Mother—Mary, is your caller a young man of economical habits? Mary—Decidedly, mother. He insists that we use but one chair to keep from wearing the furniture and always turns out the light to save electricity.

VERSATILE

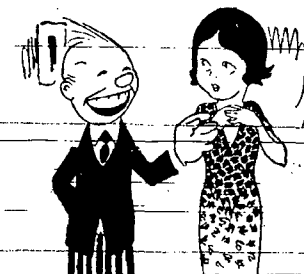

"A wonderful actor, you say?" "Yes, he played Hamlet and played the devil at the same time."

NOT SO GOOD

Returning Native—I'm surprised to hear that Bess is a widow. Has she been a widow long? Native—Oh, no, but much longer than she expected.

JUDGE AND JURY

Tom—Is stealing a kiss grand larceny or petit larceny? Jane—in most cases, it's just grand.

NOTHING ON HER

"My sister says she wouldn't marry the best man living." "My sister ain't particular that way, either."

EVERYBODY DOES

Maid—It's no use, ma'am, I am leavin'. I can't stand yer husband. Mrs. H.—It's a pity, Sarah, that I couldn't have selected a husband to suit you. Maid—Sure, ma'am, we all makes mistakes.

IN THE RIGHT CLASS

Bookkeeper—Shall I figure the thousand dollars we paid to Councilman Grabitall among the overhead expenses? Boss—Overhead? No. Put it with the underhand expenses.

When Elephant Is In "Mush"

At certain seasons, domesticated elephants suffer from a disease called "mush," and then become fully as dangerous as the rogue elephant of the jungle. When an elephant is "in mush," a white spot appears on his temple between his eye and his ear where there is a little hole in his head. From this hole, fluid oozes out until the termination of the illness, which is sometimes a matter of 60 or 90 days. An elephant "in mush" suffers such intense pain that its mind is affected.

Stage Superstitions

An actress must find or have a rabbit's foot given her; it is fatal to buy one. It is bad luck to whistle in the dressing room or put shoes on a shelf. An umbrella opened over a head is, of course, the worst kind of a thing—but it is all right to open it downwards. Cats bring good luck, especially black ones. A potato in the pocket shields from misfortune. Next to breaking a mirror, bringing peacock feathers into the theater is a calamity, and many an actor will grow faint at the sight of one.

There's More to Sponge Than Just Mass of Cells

As you see it, a sponge is just a mass of little cells. When it is alive and breathing, it not exactly kicking, in its ocean bed, these cells are filled with jelly. It lives on the water it absorbs through its small pores, the waste water passing out through the large holes at the top. During its infancy the sponge propels itself by the lashing of innumerable tiny hairs, but when it grows to maturity it settles down to be a real "stuck-in-the-mud," says a writer in London Answers Magazine.

For centuries the true nature of the sponge baffled the scientific mind. It was once thought to be a vegetable and at one period was confidently accepted as a nest created by the worms which not unnaturally are often found in it. Not until a hundred years ago did the truth dawn on the scientist Robert Grant.

There are over 2,000 known varieties of sponges, of beautiful and fantastic shapes. One resembles a wineglass of enormous size, and others are commonly found in the form of cups, balls, fans, and discs. But the most fascinating of all are the "glass sponges" found in eastern waters.

Some have their skeletons of transparent flint covered with a delicate network of the finest lace, which in perfection of design rivals the efforts of the skilled lace-maker. Others again are made up of almost transparent gauze. All these are, of course, "show-pieces" which cannot be used in the bath.

Swallows Quicker Than Pigeons to Find Homes

According to experiments of zoologists, wild birds, especially swallows, have more of a sense of orientation and are thus better able to find their homes than even the long-hailed carrier pigeon. Swallows, starlings, and wrens could find their homes from distances as far as 1,200 miles.

The question of the homing of birds is really an ancient one. Mention of the use of homing pigeons having been made in the writing of Anacreon about 550 B. C. During the reign of the caliphs, in the year A. D. 1200, the pigeon post received its highest development.

The use of the homing instinct of pigeons was not confined to post-office activities, states a writer in the Chicago Tribune. The development of the carrier pigeon for war purposes was put on a grandiose scale by the French just prior to the Franco-Prussian war.

When a bird properly trained is released in an unknown region it first circulates about the place and then proceeds in the arc of a large circle until it strikes a landmark that it recognizes, and from then on it takes the short path home. This accounts for the fact, so often observed, that pigeons taken to great distances, if they return, do so only after taking an unusually long time. The fact that pigeons get about with difficulty at night also is explained, for landmarks are obscured.

Round Head—Optimistic

If your head tends to roundness both front and back, you are optimistic, resourceful, and speculative, according to a psychologist in Pearson's London Weekky. Your weak points are impulsiveness, recklessness, and a tendency to gamble. Work which entails risk and adventure, and an element of chance, will have a special appeal for you. You might make an excellent journalist. Many first-class athletes come from the "round head" class. In order to get the best out of yourself, you should curb your extreme speculative instinct. Investigate before you gamble, and do not take so many "long shots." Associate with people who are more cautious than yourself, but avoid the extremely cautious type.

HALF-COVERED?

Abbreviated covering is very stylish and very attractive—but if the young lady in the picture doesn't cover up after a short time she'll get burned from the rays of the sun. Millions of homeowners are similarly exposed by their present inadequate insurance protection. The tragic truth is that many will get burned before the fact is discovered. Is your insurance cut on the lines of a modern swim suit—or does it fully cover your property?

Before you answer that question, send for this convenient Property Insurance Check-Up with Inventory and Analysis Blanks and instructions for arriving at a definite valuation of your home, its furnishings and your personal effects. A comparison with your present insurance will then reveal whether or not you have sufficient coverage, if you are over- or under-insured.

Three Types of Caribou Roam Forests of Canada

In Canada there are three distinct species of caribou, the barren-ground caribou which is the smallest and most numerous, the woodland caribou which is larger in size and comes next in extent of distribution and abundance, and the large mountain caribou, or Osborn's caribou, which is dark in color and exceeds all others in size, notes a Quebec correspondent in the Indianapolis News.

Of these the barren-ground caribou are the most important both in point of numbers and economic value and they probably constitute the most abundant of the larger mammals of the world. As the buffalo formerly ranged the western plains and the caribou in like abundance the barren-ground caribou were the staple food of the Indians of the north.

Like the buffalo they furnish a valuable source of food for the Indians and the caribou are found in the mountains and finally, like the buffalo, after the middle of the last century, their numbers are decreasing with the advent of the white man and his rifle.

The most striking characteristic of this animal is its periodical migrations in herds of thousands, southward in autumn and northward in spring. While these migrations are very regular in point of time, the routes followed often vary and can not be predicted with any degree of certainty.

The Name Maurice

The name Maurice, from the Latin, means "Moorish," which by implication is "dark-skinned." It is therefore suited to brunettes men, writes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Maurice, prince of Orange (1567-1625), one of the most skillful generals of his age, led the Dutch in driving the Spaniards out of the Netherlands. Maurice, elector of Saxony (1621-53) was a German general of great ability. Among other past bearers of this name who have achieved fame in various ways are: Abbot, Sir (d. 1642), English merchant, one of the council for settling the colony of Virginia; Marshal Saxe (d. 1750), great French soldier; De Haas (d. 1885), Dutch marine painter who emigrated to this country and won a high reputation with his "Farragut Passing the Forts," and others.

German Raider "Norwegian"

In 1918 a German raiding ship passed the inspection of the British blockade in the North sea and, in the next seven months, sunk ten of the Allies' vessels. It was disguised as a Norwegian sailing ship, says Collier's Weekly, and every detail was Norwegian, including its cargo, language, and clothing of the crew, furniture, photographs, ship's papers, logbook and flag. It even carried the name of a real Norwegian ship that was due to arrive at the blockade in a few hours.

Invented Surf Riding

What Polynesian first stood on a slab of light wood and sped beachward on the forehead of a Pacific wave is not known. Whoever he was, he invented Hawaii's sport of kings—and queens—surf riding. Legend has it that King Kamehameha I, ancient island conqueror, rode the waves when he was very old. Capt. James Cook, great English explorer, found surf riders in Hawaii when he discovered the islands in the middle Eighteenth century.

IN PRESQUE ISLE COUNTY

WHERE IS Presque Isle county?

Take highway US-23 north and you will drive nearly half a hundred miles through Presque Isle county, the widest county in the Lower Peninsula.

It is indeed a big county and an exceptional one in many ways with fertile agricultural lands for grazing, stock raising, seed grains, alfalfa, potatoes and fruit. To this add a wonderfully fine shore line on Lake Huron, many trout streams, beautiful Grand Lake (9 miles long). Half of Long, half of Black lakes, and a hundred smaller lakes lie within the county's boundaries.

Presque Isle boasts two great state parks. Onaway State Park (see above) contains 150 densely wooded acres with a wide variety of trees. This park, with almost a mile of sandy beach on Black Lake, is a focus point for fishermen who realize that the lake teems with small and large mouth bass, bluegills, perch, great northern pike, walleyed pike and muskellunge.

Five miles north of Rogers City on M-91 is P. H. Hoelt State Park. This park is thickly covered with a forest of native hard-wood trees mixed with pine, spruces and junipers. An interesting feature is the existence of fine examples of the "Dunes," among which are many foot trails.

Presque Isle County possesses the only distinction of having the only water falls in the Lower Peninsula. Okechoc Falls is viewed by many tourists from a small platform conveniently provided with a large number of picnic tables. Much of the Black Lake State Forest is within the county and since there is much undeveloped land the exceptional deer and small game hunting is equalled only by the fishing.

Naturally, this county is favored with many summer resorts, hotels, cabins and cottages, and several private clubs such as the Canada Creek Club with over 18,000 acres and 20 miles of trout streams. With the completion of the new US-23, the Huron shore Dunes, a new and highly attractive area will become more easily accessible to the public.

Where is Presque Isle County? It is the most northerly county in the Lower Peninsula, claimed by many to be the best recreational area in the state.

Fort Garry Became Winnipeg

Of the original Fort Garry, built about a century ago at the juncture of the Assiniboine and Red rivers in western Canada, only the gate itself remains. Fort Garry became today's Winnipeg. It was the scene of the "provisional government" which Louis Riel, the half-breed rebel, established in 1869. The Chateau de Ramezay was built in 1704 by Claude de Ramezay, eleventh governor of Montreal. It was the headquarters of Montgomery during the American occupation of the city in 1775, and in its vaults a printing press was set up by Benjamin Franklin. Benedict Arnold once lived there. Today it is a portrait gallery and museum.

Only Species of Wild Horses

Prejvalsky's horse the only species of truly wild horse in existence, cannot be tamed and is rarely caught after it reaches maturity, says Collier's Weekly. In 1902 Karl Hagenbeck led an expedition to the Gobi Desert, the habitat of these animals, to secure a number of them for zoos. But despite the fact that he had 2,000 extra Kirghiz horsemen to help his own men, he captured only 32 foals, which were too young and weak to escape with their herds.

French Church in London Crypt

In the crypt of Canterbury cathedral, London, there is a French church.

Name Honor Means "Honor"

Honor, Honora, and Honoria, feminine forms of this Latin name mean "honor," while Honorate and Honore, also feminine, mean "honored," as do the masculine forms, Honorius and Honore, the latter a French form pronounced in three syllables, writes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. St. Honora of the Sixth century was the daughter of a British king and there was also a St. Honoria in early days. Honore, Comte de Mirabeau (d. 1791), was a French statesman. Honore de Balzac (d. 1850), French novelist, viewed his own works as part of one great human comedy. Honore Daumier (d. 1879) was a French caricaturist, painter and sculptor.

Shrine Founded in 710

Entering the deer park of Nara, you pass through a great torii, or front gate, of red wood and stroll past many stone lanterns and wistaria-forested trees. Finally you reach the vermilion-painted Kasuga-no-Miya, a Shinto shrine which Fujiwara Fuhito founded in 710. It is dedicated to the original ancestor of the Fujiwara family, who was not far removed from the sun goddess, and is one of Japan's most ancient, venerated sanctuaries. A good example of primitive Japanese architecture, the Kasuga shrine has often been rebuilt like most Shinto temples.

Nuthria Native of South Africa

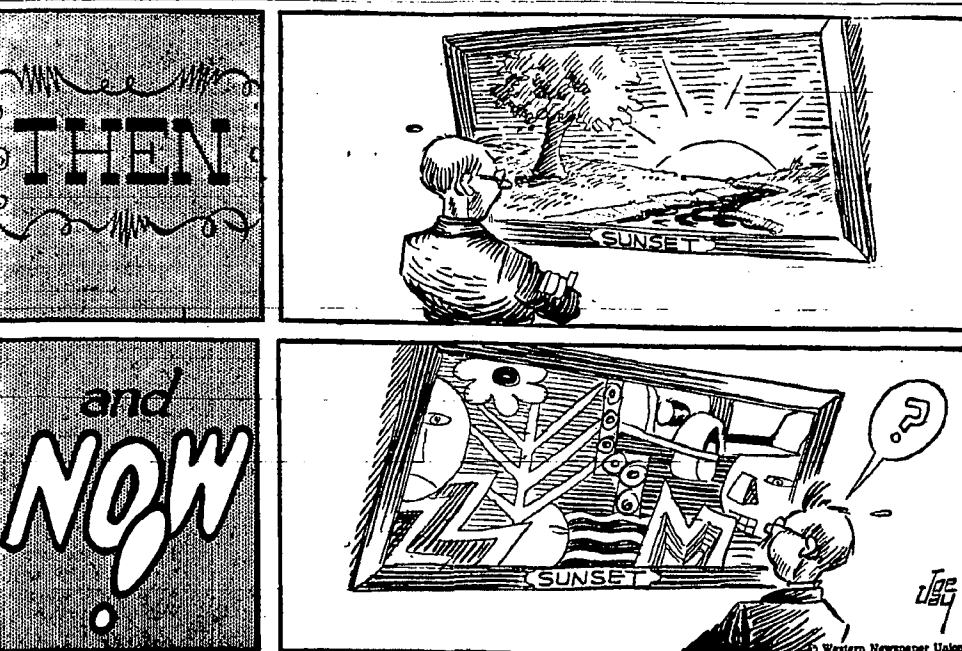

The nuthria is a native of South Africa, although it is specially bred on "farms" in many parts of the world. It measures between one and two feet long, not counting a long scaly tail. In color, it may be anything between brown and yellow. In habits it is really of an aquatic nature, but will easily drop this and wander anywhere in search of food. Before preparing, the fur is rather harsh and stiff.

Map Shows Paradise

Paradise was once situated deep in the jungles of South Africa, according to a copy of the famous 500-year-old Catalan world map, exhibited in London. It places the mythical spot at the source of the Nile. The original of the map is preserved at Modena, Italy. Ireland is described on the map as a Hibernian island "where people can never die. When they are so old that they wish to die, they have to be taken away to the mainland."

Nighthawk Protected by Nature

The nighthawk, which is frequently observed at dusk, is well endowed by nature in protective coloration. When it is incubating it can hardly be distinguished from its surroundings. It usually picks a site on a gravel roof or the ground and makes no nest for its eggs. While flying it is constantly gobbling up insects which form the bulk of its diet.

Peter Petersen, in finding an exploded bullet that came through the screen and glass of an upstairs bedroom, located in the front part of their home, says he thinks it unsafe to even live within the city limits. The bullet came from a .22 rifle, and he says he thinks it high time that this promiscuous shooting be stopped in town.

Now that Grayling has a well stocked furniture store, it is up to the people of this community to do their purchasing here. We have learned that the inconvenience of being without a furniture store isn't so pleasant and is at times extremely provoking. Just as long as the Johnson store gives the people here good service and their prices are consistent, they deserve the support of the people at home. Let's show them our appreciation by giving them our patronage. Their opening day was last Saturday and they had many visitors and received many fine compliments on their lines. Mr. Johnson was in Saginaw Wednesday selecting a line of wall paper.

Blackie's fine plate glass show window, with its new flashy neon signs, was smashed into smithereens Saturday night when someone was unable to stop his car and ran into it.

Miss Audrey Miller of Jackson arrived first of the week to assume the duty of county visitor for old-age assistance. She succeeds Miss Kondratowicz of Gaylord. Miss McCain, district supervisor, and Miss Miller are looking for office space in Grayling.

Fourth of July has a double significance for Rollo Failing as it is also his birthday anniversary. To celebrate the event there was a gathering of relatives and friends at the home of Otto Failing at Lake Margrethe for the day. There was a fine picnic dinner with all the trimmings and then in the evening the crowd drove to Roscommon to view the fireworks display.

A crash on the Lake road Saturday evening sent several Man-celona people to Mercy Hospital. The auto in which they were riding, crossed the intersection of M-93 and M-76 when it was struck by a truck belonging to the Michigan Guard. The latter was uninjured but the auto was wrecked. The occupants were badly bruised and cut by flying glass but all were able to return to their homes that night. First aid was administered at the hospital.
